The Benon Lutaaya Residency, in collaboration with the Bag Factory and Lizamore & Associates, has been an incredible opportunity to work in a deeply inspiring environment. Following on from my previous exhibition Ātmān (2015), the residency culminates in a body of work that is still very much linked to the theme ātmān, “the self as the subject of individual consciousness, the soul, the supreme personal principle of life in the universe”. Exploring space, perception and an inner world has been central to my work and the expression of consciousness (energy) translates into works on canvas, embroidery material and transparent plastic using radiant colours, thread and cotton material. The works display the integration of the material and abstract through washes of colour and hand-stitching as well as experimenting with the limits of two-dimensional and three-dimensional space. In essence, the works depict the process of ‘drawing out’ from the invisible into the visible, personally awakening a stronger perception of the life force that can be termed the ātmān.
